27. Penalty to be imposed in addition to other punishment.

Where a person is convicted of an offence committed by the acceptance of any gratification in contravention of any provision of this Act, then, if that gratification is a sum of money or if the value of that gratification can be assessed, the court shall, in addition to imposing on that person any other punishment, order him or her to pay as a penalty, within such time as may be specified in the order, a sum which is equal to the amount of the gratification or is, in the opinion of the court, the value of that gratification, and any such penalty shall be recoverable as a fine.

28. Principal may recover amount of secret gift.

(1) Where any gratification has, in contravention of this Act, been given by any person to an agent, the principal may recover as a civil debt the amount or the money value of the gratification either from the agent or from the person who gave the gratification to the agent, and no conviction or acquittal of the accused person in respect of an offence under this Act shall operate as a bar to proceedings for the recovery of the amount or money value.

(2) Nothing in this section shall prejudice or affect any right which a principal has under any written law or rule of law to recover from his or her agent any money or property.

29. Acceptor of gratification to be guilty notwithstanding that purpose not carried out, etc

(1) Where, in any proceedings against an agent for any offence under section 3(a), it is proved that the agent corruptly accepted, obtained or agreed to accept or attempted to obtain any gratification having reason to believe or suspect that the gratification was offered as an inducement or reward for his or her doing or forbearing to do any act or for showing or forbearing to show any favour or disfavour to any person in relation to his or her principal's affairs or business, the agent commits an offence under that section notwithstanding that he or she did not have the power, right or opportunity to do so, show or forbear or that he or she accepted the gratification without intending to do so, show or forbear or that he or she did not in fact do so, show or forbear or that the act, favour or disfavour was not in relation to his or her principal's affairs or business.

- (2) Where, in any proceedings against a person for an offence under section 3(b), it is proved that the person corruptly gave, agreed to give or offered any gratification to an agent as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do an act or for showing or forbearing to show any favour or disfavour to a person having reason to believe or suspect that the agent had the power, right or opportunity to do so, show or forbear and that the act, favour or disfavour was in relation to his or her principal's affairs or business, that person commits an offence under that section notwithstanding that the agent had no power, right or opportunity or that the act, favour or disfavour was not in relation to his or her principal's affairs or business.
- (3) Where, in any proceedings against an agent for an offence under section 3(d), it is proved that the agent corruptly gave or agreed to give or offer any gratification to an agent as an inducement or reward for doing or omitting to do or having done or omitted to do in relation to the business or affairs of his or her employer or for showing or omitting to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to the business or affairs of his or her employer, the first mentioned agent commits an offence under that section notwithstanding that the agent had no power, right or opportunity or that the act, favour or disfavour was not in relation to the business or affairs of his or her employer.

30. Evidence of pecuniary sources or property.

In a trial by a court for an offence under this Act, the fact that an accused person is in possession, for which he or she cannot satisfactorily account, of pecuniary resources or property disproportionate to the accused person's known sources of income, or that the accused person had, at or about the time of the alleged offence, obtained an accretion of his or her pecuniary resources or property for which he or she cannot satisfactorily account, that fact may be proved and may be taken into consideration by the court as corroborating the testimony of any witness in the trial or inquiry that the accused person accepted or obtained or agreed to accept or attempted to obtain any gratification and as showing that the gratification was accepted or obtained or agreed to be accepted or attempted to be obtained corruptly as an inducement or reward.

31. Illicit enrichment.

(1) The Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions or an authorised officer, may investigate or cause an investigation of any person where there is reasonable ground to suspect that the person—

(a) maintains a standard of living above that which is commensurate with his or her current or past known sources of income or assets; or

(b) is in control or possession of pecuniary resources or property disproportionate to his or her current or past known sources of income or assets.

(2) A person found in possession of illicitly acquired pecuniary resources or property commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding ten years or a fine not exceeding two hundred and forty currency points or both.

(3) Where a court is satisfied in any proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) that having regard to the closeness of his or her relationship to the accused and to other relevant circumstances, there is reason to believe that any person was holding pecuniary resources or property in trust for or otherwise on behalf of the accused, or acquired such resources or property as gift or loan without adequate consideration, from the accused, those resources or property shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been under the control or in possession of the accused.

(4) In any prosecution for corruption or proceedings under this Act, a certificate of a Government Valuer or a valuation expert appointed by the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions as to the value of the asset or benefit or source of income or benefit is admissible and is proof of the value, unless the contrary is proved.

32. Evidence of accomplice.

Notwithstanding any rule of practice or written law to the contrary, no witness in a trial by a court of an offence under this Act shall be regarded by the court as being unworthy of credit by reason only of any payment or delivery by him or her or on his or her behalf of any gratification to an agent or member of a public body.

33. Special investigation powers of the Inspector General of Government and Director of Public Prosecutions.

(1) Notwithstanding anything in any other law except the Constitution, the Inspector General of Government, or the Director of Public Prosecutions, if satisfied that there is a reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under this Act has been committed by a person, may, by order authorise a police officer of or above the rank of Assistant Superintendent or an inspectorate officer named in the order or a special investigator named in the order to investigate any bank account, share account or purchase account of that person and that authority shall be sufficient warrant for the production of the accounts and documents, as may be required for scrutiny by the officer authorised in the order.

(2) A person who fails to disclose the information required to be disclosed by him or her under subsection (1) to a person authorised in an order under that subsection, commits an offence and is liable on conviction to imprisonment not exceeding three years or a fine not exceeding seventy two currency points or both.

34. Court to restrict disposal of assets or bank accounts of accused, etc.

(1) A court may, upon application by the Director of Public Prosecutions or Inspector General of Government issue an order placing restrictions as they appear to the court to be reasonable, on the operation of any bank account of the accused person or a person suspected of having committed an offence or any person associated with such an offence or on the disposal of any property of the accused person, the suspected person or a person associated with the offence or the suspected person for the purpose of ensuring the payment of compensation to any victim of the offence or otherwise for the purpose of preventing the dissipation of any monies or other property derived from or related to an offence under this Act.

(2) A restriction imposed under subsection (1) on the operation of the bank account of a person shall be limited to the amount which is necessary to compensate the victim of the offence or an amount not exceeding the amount involved in the commission of the offence whichever is higher; and any money in the account in excess of that amount shall continue to be at the disposal of the person to whom the order under subsection (1) relates.

(3) The order imposing a restriction shall be reviewed by the court every six months if it is still in force.

(4) The order shall, unless earlier revoked, expire six months after the death of the person against whom it was made.

(5) The Director of Public Prosecutions shall ensure that an order issued by a court under subsection (1) is served on the banker, or an accused person or a suspected person and any other person to whom the order relates.

(6) A person who knowingly fails to comply with an order issued under this section commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding five years or a fine not exceeding one hundred and twenty currency points or both.

35. Payment of compensation out of resources of convicted person.

(1) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that a principal whose agent has been convicted of an offence under this Act has suffered loss as a result of the commission of the offence, the court may order any sums standing to the credit of the convicted person or any property which the court is satisfied was acquired directly from any gratification obtained by the agent to be applied in making good the loss; and in the case of property which is not money, the court may order the sale of the property and the proceeds of sale paid to the principal.

(2) Any monies remaining from the proceeds of sale of property after payment to the principal of any loss under subsection (1) shall be refunded to the convicted person.

(3) Any transfer of any property contrary to any restriction imposed under section 34 is void and, in particular, the court may by order set aside any transaction aimed at defeating the purposes of subsection (1).

(4) Any person who obstructs the implementation of the order of a court under subsection (1) or (3) commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding five years or a fine not exceeding one hundred and fifty currency points or both.

PART IV—POWERS OF INSPECTOR GENERAL OF GOVERNMENT AND DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC PROSECUTIONS

36. Powers of the Inspector General of Government and the Director of Public Prosecutions, to order inspection of documents.

(1) The Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions, may, if satisfied that any evidence of the commission of an offence under this Act by a person employed by a public body is likely to be found in any document relating to that person, his or her spouse or child or to a person reasonably believed by the Inspector General of Government or Director of Public Prosecutions to be a trustee or agent for that person, by order, authorise any police officer of or above the rank of Assistant Superintendent of Police or an inspectorate officer named in the order or any special investigator named in the order to inspect the document.

(2) A police officer, an inspectorate officer or special investigator authorised under subsection (1) may, at a reasonable time, enter the place specified in the order and inspect the document referred to in subsection (1) kept in that place and may take copies of the documents.

37. Orders of search and seizure.

(1) If it is shown to a Judge, Chief Magistrate, a Magistrate Grade 1, the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions, upon information and after such inquiry as he or she thinks necessary, that there is reasonable cause to believe that there is, in any place a document containing evidence of the commission of an offence under this Act, the Judge, Chief Magistrate, Magistrate Grade 1, Inspector General of Government or Director of Public Prosecutions may, by warrant, directed to an inspectorate officer or a police officer, or a special investigator, empower a police officer, inspectorate officer or special investigator to enter the place by force, if necessary and search for, seize and detain that document.

(2) Where it appears to a police officer not below the rank of Assistant Superintendent of Police, or an inspectorate officer, or special investigator that there is reasonable cause to believe that there is concealed or deposited in any place any document containing evidence of the commission of an offence under this Act and the police officer, inspectorate officer or special investigator, has reasonable grounds for believing that by reason of the delay in obtaining a search warrant the object of the search is likely to be frustrated, he or she may exercise, in respect of that place, all the powers mentioned in subsection (1) as if he or she were empowered to do so by warrant issued under subsection (1).

(3) Where a person in or about a place that is searched under subsection (1) or (2) is reasonably suspected of concealing about his or her person any document for which a search should be made, that person may be searched and any document found may be seized and detained.

(4) Where it is necessary to cause a woman to be searched under this section, the search shall be conducted by a woman.

38. Obligation to give information.

A person who is required by a police officer or special investigator to give information on a subject which it is the police officer's or investigator's duty to inquire into under this Act and which it is in his or her power to give shall be legally bound to give that information.

39. Obstruction of search, etc.

A person who—

(a) refuses a police officer or special investigator, authorised to enter or search, access to a place;

(b) assaults, obstructs, hinders or delays a police officer or special investigator in effecting any entrance which he or she is entitled to effect under this Act, or in the execution of any duty imposed or power conferred by this Act;

(c) fails to comply with a lawful demand of a police officer or special investigator in the execution of his or her duty under this Act; or

(d) refuses or neglects to give a police officer or special investigator any information which may reasonably be required of him or her and which he or she has in his or her power to give, commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding three years or a fine not exceeding seventy two currency points or to both.

40. Obstruction of investigations.

A person who, with the intent to conceal an offence or frustrate the investigation of a suspected offence of corruption under this Act—

(a) destroys, alters, mutilates or falsifies, any book, document, valuable security, account, computer system, diskette, computer printout or other electronic device which belongs to or is in the possession of his or her principal, or was received by him or her on account of his or her employment, or any entry in any such book, document, account or electronic device;

(b) makes or is privy to making any false entry in a book, document, account or electronic record referred to in paragraph (a); or

(c) omits, or is privy to omitting, any material particular from any book, document, account or electronic record referred to in paragraph (a), commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding seven years or a fine not exceeding one hundred and sixty eight currency points or both.

41. Director of Public Prosecutions and Inspector General of Government's powers to obtain information.

(1) In the course of an investigation or proceedings into or relating to an offence by any person employed by any public body under this Act, the Director of Public Prosecutions or the Inspector General of Government may, notwithstanding anything in any other written law to the contrary, by written notice—

- (a) require that person to furnish a sworn statement in writing enumerating all movable or immovable property belonging to or possessed by the person and by the spouse, sons and daughters of the person, and specifying the date on which each of the properties enumerated was acquired whether by way of purchase, gift, bequest, inheritance or otherwise;
- (b) require that person to furnish a sworn statement in writing of any money or other property sent out of Uganda by him or her during such period as may be specified in the notice;
- (c) require any other person to furnish a sworn statement in writing enumerating all movable or immovable property belonging to or possessed by that person where the Director of Public Prosecutions has reasonable grounds to believe that the information can assist the investigation;
- (d) require the regional commissioner of income tax to furnish, as specified in the notice, all information available to him or her relating to the affairs of any person where the Director of Public Prosecutions or Inspector General of Government has reasonable grounds to believe that the information can assist the investigation and to produce or furnish, as specified in the notice, any document or a certified copy of any document relating to that person which is in his or her possession or under his or her control;

- (e) require the Minister responsible for any department, office or establishment of the Government, or the president, chairperson, manager or chief executive officer of any other public body or the secretary, manager or principal officer of any company or association or body of persons whether incorporated or not, or a partner in any partnership to produce or furnish, as specified in the notice, any document or a certified copy of any document which is in his or her possession or under his or her control; or
- (f) require the manager of a bank to give copies of the accounts of that person or of the spouse or son or daughter of that person at the bank.

(2) A person to whom a notice is sent by the Director of Public Prosecutions or the Inspector General of Government under subsection (1) shall, notwithstanding any written law or an oath of secrecy to the contrary, comply with the terms of that notice within such time as may be specified in the notice and any person who willfully neglects or fails to comply commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding three years or a fine not exceeding seventy two currency points or both.

(3) The Director of Public Prosecutions or the Inspector General of Government may, in the course of any investigation into or relating to an offence under this Act, invite any person who has given a sworn statement under subsection (1)(a) or (b) to give an explanation or amplification of that statement, if he or she considers that it is necessary or desirable to do so.

(4) In any prosecution for an offence under this Act, the sworn statement of any person given under subsection (1)(a) or (b) may be used in evidence against him or her.

42. Evidence and defence of custom.

(1) In proceedings under this Act, evidence shall not be admissible to show that the gratification mentioned in this Act is customary in any profession, trade, social occasion, vocation or calling or in the course of any particular business transaction.

(2) It shall not be a defence to an offence under this Act to establish that any gratification mentioned in this Act is customary in any profession, trade, social occasion, vocation or calling, or in the course of any particular business transaction or social occasion.

43. Duty to arrest.

(1) A person who is employed by a public or a private body to whom any gratification is corruptly given or offered, shall arrest or cause the arrest of, or report the person who gives or offers the gratification to a police officer or an inspectorate officer.

(2) A person who fails to comply with subsection (1) without reasonable excuse commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding two years or a fine not exceeding forty eight currency points or both.

44. Protection of informers.

(1) Except as hereafter provided, a complaint to an offence under this Act shall not be admitted in evidence in any civil or criminal proceeding, and no witness shall be obliged or permitted to disclose the name or address of any informer, or state any matter which might lead to his or her discovery.

(2) If a book, a paper or other document, or a visual or a sound recording, or other matter or material which is given in evidence or liable to inspection in any civil, criminal or other proceedings in court or other authority as referred to in subsection (1), contains an entry or other matter in which the informer is named or described or shown, or which might lead to his or her discovery, the court before which the proceedings are held shall cause all those parts of them or passages from them to be concealed from view or to be obliterated or otherwise removed so far as is necessary to protect that person from discovery.

(3) If on a trial for any offence under this Act, the court, after full inquiry into the case, is of the opinion that the informer willfully made in his or her complaint a material statement which he or she knew or believed to be false or did not believe to be true, or if in any other proceeding the court is of the opinion that justice cannot be fully dispensed between the parties to the proceeding without the discovery of the informer, the court may require the production of the original complaint, if in writing, permit inquiry and require full disclosure concerning the informer.

(4) Subsection (1) shall not have effect where a prosecution is instituted against any person for an offence under section 45.

45. Penalty for giving false information.

(1) A person who gives information knowing that the information is false or which he or she believes to be false, intending to cause or knowing it to be likely that he or she will by giving the information cause an investigation or prosecution to be commenced under this Act, commits an offence and is liable on conviction to—

(a) a term of imprisonment not exceeding five years or a fine not exceeding one hundred and twenty currency points, or both; and

(b) compensate the person in respect of whom an investigation or a prosecution under this Act is commenced as in the opinion of the court is just, having regard to all the circumstances; and any such order shall be deemed to be a decree and may be executed in the manner provided by the Civil Procedure Act.

(2) Nothing in this section shall prevent proceedings to recover damages by any person being instituted in a civil court, but at the time of awarding damages in a subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the court shall take into consideration any sum paid or recovered as compensation awarded under subsection (1).

46. Disqualification.

A person who is convicted of an offence under section 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25 shall be disqualified from holding a public office for a period of ten years from his or her conviction.

47. Protection of persons acting in pursuance of the Act.

An act, matter or thing done or omitted by a person authorised by this Act to perform the duty or exercise a function shall not, if the act, matter or thing was done or omitted in good faith, render the person personally liable to any action, liability, claim or demand.

48. Invalidity of appointment as bar to prosecution.

A person shall not be exempt from prosecution under this Act by reason of the invalidity of his or her appointment, nomination or election to his or her office.

49. Prosecution of offences.

A prosecution under this Act shall not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions or the Inspector General of Government; but a person charged with such an offence may be arrested, or a warrant for his or her arrest may be issued and executed, and the person may be detained or released on police bond, notwithstanding that the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions or the Inspector General of Government, to the institution of a prosecution for the offence has not been obtained, but no further or other proceedings shall be taken until that consent has been obtained.

50. Appointment of special investigators.

(1) Where the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions considers it necessary for the purposes of an investigation under this Act, he or she may appoint any person who in his or her opinion possesses the necessary skill or experience to be a special investigator.

(2) A special investigator shall be appointed for the purpose of conducting special investigations in a specified case and his or her remuneration shall be charged to the operational funds of the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions in accordance with the financial regulations governing the procurement of specialized services for the time being in force.

(3) A certificate signed by the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions shall be issued to a special investigator and shall be evidence of his or her appointment for the purposes of this Act.

51. Jurisdiction to try offences.

Jurisdiction to try an offence under this Act shall be exercised only by—

- (a) the High Court;
- (b) a magistrate's court presided over by a Chief Magistrate; or
- (c) a magistrate's court presided over by a Magistrate Grade 1.

52. Punishment for attempts, preparations, abetments and criminal conspiracies.

A person who—

- (a) attempts to commit an offence under this Act;
- (b) does a thing which is preparatory to, or in furtherance of the commission of an offence under this Act; or
- (c) abets or is engaged in a criminal conspiracy to commit an offence under this Act, commits an offence and is liable on conviction to any penalty prescribed respectively for such an offence by the Penal Code Act.

PART VI—RESTRAINING ORDER

53. Application for restraining order.

Where a person has been charged or is about to be charged with an offence under this Act, an authorised officer may make an application to the court for an order, in this Act referred to as a restraining order, restraining the disposal of the property of, or in possession or under the control of that person, wherever that property is situated.

54. Contents of application for restraining order.

An application made under section 53 shall be accompanied by an affidavit setting out—

- (a) the offence under investigation;
- (b) a description of the property in respect of the restraining order sought;
- (c) the name and address of the person believed to be in the possession of the property;
- (d) the grounds for the belief that the property is tainted in relation to the offence or that the person being investigated derived a benefit directly or indirectly from the commission of the offence under investigation;

(e) where the application is for a restraining order against property of a person other than the person being investigated, the grounds for the belief that the property is tainted property in relation to the offence under investigation and is subject to the effective control of the accused; and

(f) the grounds for the belief that a confiscation order or a pecuniary order may be or is likely to be made under this Act in respect of the property.

55. Issue of a restraining order.

Where the court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that there exists property in respect of which a restraining order may be made under this Act, the court may make an order—

(a) prohibiting any person from disposing of, or otherwise dealing with property specified in the order other than in a manner specified in the order; and

(b) at the request of the authorised officer, and where the court is of the opinion that the circumstances so require, appoint a person to take control of or to manage or otherwise deal with the property.

56. Contents of a restraining order.

(1) The court in making a restraining order under section 55 may give directions as to the management of property in question for the purpose of—

(a) determining any dispute as to the ownership of the property or any part of it;

(b) paying for its proper administration during the period when the restraining order remains in force;

(c) in regard to the person subject to the order—

(i) paying that person for the reasonable subsistence of that person and his or her family;

(ii) permitting the use of the property in order to enter into a recognizance required of that person by a court;

(iii) paying that person's reasonable expenses in defending the criminal charge and any proceedings under this Act; and

(iv) paying any specified debt incurred by that person in good faith.

(2) The person appointed by the court under this section to manage property subject to a restraining order shall be accountable to the court for the management of the property.

57. Notice of application for restraining order.

Before making a restraining order, the court may require notice to be given to, and may hear any person who, in the opinion of the court, appears to have an interest in the property, unless the court is of the opinion that giving the notice before making the order would result in the disappearance, disposal, dissipation or reduction in the value of the property.

58. Service of restraining order.

A copy of the restraining order shall be served on the person affected by the restraining order in a manner directed by the court or prescribed by law.

59. Registration of restraining order.

(1) A copy of a restraining order which affects land shall be registered with the Registrar of Titles or a recorder.

(2) Where the restraining order affects any other property, a copy of the order shall be registered with the relevant authority

(3) Where the particulars of a restraining order are registered under the Registration of Titles Act or the Land Act, a person who subsequently deals with the property shall, for the purposes of section 57 be taken to have had notice of the order at the time of the dealing.

(4) A person who does not register a restraining order which affects land or any other property commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding twelve currency points or both.

60. Setting aside disposition.

(1) Where a restraining order is made against property and the property is disposed of, or otherwise dealt with, in contravention of the restraining order, the disposition or dealing is null and void and an authorised officer may apply to the court that made the restraining order for an order that the disposition or dealing be set aside.

(2) Where an authorised officer makes an application under this section in relation to a disposition or dealing, the court may set aside the disposition or dealing as from the day on which the disposition or dealing took place.

(3) A person who disposes of restrained property or a person who willingly acquires interest after knowing the property has been restrained commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding four years or a fine not exceeding ninety six currency points or both.

61. Duration of restraining order.

A restraining order remains in force until—

(a) it is discharged, reviewed, revoked or varied by the court;

(b) the expiration of six months from the date on which it is made or such later time as the court may determine; or

(c) a confiscation order or a pecuniary penalty order is made in respect of property which is the subject of the order.

62. Review of restraining order.

(1) A person who has an interest in property in respect of which a restraining order is made may, at any time, apply to the court for a review.

(2) An application for review shall not be heard by the court unless the applicant has given the authorised officer at least three working days notice in writing of the application.

(3) The court may require notice of the application to be given to any other person who, in the opinion of the court, appears to have an interest in the property.

(4) Upon application, the court may revoke or vary the restraining order or make the order subject to such conditions as the court thinks fit.

(5) For the purposes of this section, the court may—

(a) require the applicant to enter into a recognisance;

(b) vary the restraining order to permit the payment of reasonable expenses of the applicant, including those of his or her dependants if any, and reasonable legal or business expenses of the applicant.

(6) An order under this section may be made only if the court is satisfied that the—

(a) applicant is the lawful owner of the property, has a legal interest in or is entitled to lawful possession of the property, and appears to be innocent of any complicity in the commission of an offence or of any collusion in relation to an offence; and

(b) the property will no longer be required for the purposes of any investigation or as evidence in any proceedings.

PART VII—CONFISCATION ORDER

63. Confiscation order.

(1) Where a person is convicted of an offence under this Act, in addition to the penalties imposed under this Act, the court may make an order confiscating the property that is the subject of or derived directly or indirectly from the act of corruption.

(2) Where court makes a confiscation order against any property, the property shall vest in the Government.

(3) Where property is registerable property the order shall be registered with the appropriate authority.

64. Confiscation notice.

The court shall issue notice of sixty days to persons to whom the confiscation order relates.

65. Procedure for confiscation order in relation to property where person dies or absconds.

(1) Where a person has been charged with the commission of an offence under this Act and the person dies or absconds, the Inspector General of Government or the Director of Public Prosecutions or an authorised officer may apply to the court for a confiscation order in respect of any tainted property of the person being charged, and the court may, if satisfied beyond reasonable doubt, that the property is tainted property, order that the property of the person as is specified by the court be confiscated.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a person is taken to have absconded if reasonable attempts to arrest the person under a warrant have been unsuccessful during the period of one year commencing on the day the warrant was issued, and the person shall be taken to have absconded on the last day of that period.

66. Voidable transfers.

The court may, before making a confiscation order and, in the case of property in respect of which a restraining order is made, notice of which is given and the order served in accordance with this Act, set aside any conveyance or transfer of the property that occurred after the seizure of the property or the service of the restraining order, unless the conveyance or transfer was made for valuable consideration to a person acting in good faith and without notice.

PART VIII—MISCELLANEOUS.

67. Minister's power to amend Schedule.

The Minister responsible for justice may, by statutory instrument, with the approval of the Cabinet, amend the Schedule to this Act.

68. Repeal of Cap. 121.

The Prevention of Corruption Act is repealed.

69. Consequential amendment of Cap. 120.

The Penal Code Act is amended by repealing sections 85, 86, 87, 88, 89 90, 91, 92, 93, 268, 269, 322, 325 and 326.
